Catherine François

Born in 1963 - Lives and works in Brussels

---

The Belgian sculptor Catherine François (born in 1963) is known for her often monumental bronzes. If there is a guideline in the work of Catherine François over the past ten years, it is a cross or rather a crossing, a meeting, moreover, intersecting lines, Catherine François collects them. She captures them everywhere, all the time, in pictures first. She probably has hundreds, maybe thousands of them. Meetings - or shocks - are everywhere for those who know how to see them. And Catherine François is a sounding board - paradoxically, she, whose silhouette rather evokes the reed in the wind, long and thin. Her apparent fragility hides a great strength, nature to which she listens, feels and vibrates. This force is seen applied to bronze, to this forging material, which she sculpts, encircles, polishes.
