

Patrice Giorda

Born in Lyon in 1952 – Lives and works in Lyon.

Noticed early on, notably in the international selection of the 13th Paris Biennale in 1985, Patrice Giorda has continually asserted his singularity as a painter in the classical sense. His figurative work, far from the avant-garde movements that turn away from painting, remains nonetheless absolutely contemporary. His symbolic representation of nature and humanity goes beyond mere landscapes, scenes, portraits, or still lifes. Reality is enriched by memory and the ongoing pursuit Giorda describes as a “deepening of being.” With great formal, spiritual, and poetic rigor, Patrice Giorda blends the real and the imaginary, the universal and the singular. He reconciles the irreconcilable: the radiant beauty of light and color with the depth of solitude’s shadows.
